Ceremonials of the Celebration of the Jewish Fast Day.

Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement was yesterday celebrated by Hebrews in civilization of the time permitted.

It was the most important of all days in the Jewish year. It was the day of atonement for all the sins of the past twelve months. It began at sundown Sunday night and ended at sundown last night, and during that holy period every Hebrew abstained from every act that would have reminded him of the world of the present.
